McAdoo Trails, Smith Wins

THE PURGE THAT FAILED

A double defeat for President Roosevelt in the Senate set-up appeared likely today. In South Carolina, Senator "Cotton Ed" Smith, an outstanding target in his "purge" was returned to his old post in a mounting majority of votes over Colonel Olin D. Johnston.

In California, Senator McAdoo, backed by the Deal, was trailing his "pension plan" opponent, Sheridan Downey.

THE VOTE

CALIFORNIA (6591 of 12,438 Precincts)		SOUTH CAROLINA (1363 of 1509 Precincts)
Downey	173,036	Smith	158,896
McAdoo	141,649	Johnston	128,055

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 31 (AP)—Sheridan Downey, who made a novel old-age pension proposal the chief issue of his primary campaign, rolled up a substantial lead today over Senator William Gibbs McAdoo, President Roosevelt's choice for renomination on the Democratic ticket.

Downey, a San Francisco lawyer, advocated the "$30 every Thursday" pension plan for all jobless over 50 years of age. Californians expect to vote on the proposal in November.

Purge Drive Swings Into Reverse

Smith Wallops S. C. Deal Pet

COLUMBIA, S. C., Aug. 31 (AP)—South Carolina, the most solidly Democratic state, by a mounting majority of 150,234 to 123,195 votes, today rejected the New Deal's candidate and returned Senator E. D. (Cotton Ed) Smith to the post he has held for 30 years.

And as the 74-year-old senator watched the returns crystallize into a rout of President Roosevelt's endorsed opponent, Governor Olin D. Johnston, he donned a red shirt, in the spirit of 1776 and declared:

HITS DICTATION

"No man dares to come into South Carolina and try to dictate to the sons of men who held high the hands of Gen. Robert E. Lee and Wade Hampton."

"We welcome anyone to come into our state and advise with us, but not to come and tell us whom we are to choose."

Smith, Democratic dean of the senate, stood at the foot of the statue of General Wade Hampton on the state capitol grounds and received the good wishes of a group of red-shirted men who came to congratulate him on his smashing victory.

The chairman of the Senate agriculture committee was the first senator to face the test of the New Deal party "purge." He termed the result of the primary a "victory for democracy."

Johnson, 41-year-old attorney, World War veteran and one-time textile worker, had no immediate comment. The governor stumped the 46 counties of the state in a three months' campaign as "a hundred per cent New Dealer."

Returns from 1363 of the State's 1507 precincts gave Smith 158,896 votes and Johnson 128,055.

In the last presidential election South Carolina gave President Roosevelt the largest proportionate majority of any state.

Smith, in his campaign, told his audiences that he had supported the administration in about 80 per cent of its measures.

The final hours of the campaign, which bristled with personalities and tongue-lashings, were enlivened by the dramatic withdrawal of a third candidate, Edgar A. Brown of Barnwell, who also had campaigned as a New Deal supporter.

Roosevelt Knew Smith Best Bet

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31 (AP)—White House aides said today that President Roosevelt predicted yesterday that Senator E. D. Smith of South Carolina would win the Democratic senatorial nomination by 40,000 votes.

Mr. Roosevelt had this comment to make on Smith's success:

"It is often true that it takes a long, long time to bring the past up to the present."

The brief quotation was relayed to reporters through Stephen Early, presidential secretary.

Early said that when he and Marvin McIntyre, another secretary, had consulted the President this morning, the executive, with a smile, had reached into a drawer of a side table and pulled out an envelope with his prediction of the outcome of the South Carolina race.

Early said the President wrote out the forecast yesterday and that it gave Smith a 40,000 majority.

"With a sort of twinkle in his eye," Early asserted, "he said it wasn't going to be quite 40,000."

Duce's Paper Gibes at U. S.

ROME, Aug. 31 (AP)—Premier Mussolini's newspaper answered Secretary of State Cordell Hull's anti-war statement of August 27 today with a gibe at the United State's as "an exporting country" of both "sermons" and arms.

SUPPORT—William G. McAdoo, veteran California statesman, looked on as President Roosevelt, left, "blessed" him in his fight for Democratic nomination for senator. Today McAdoo was trailing Sheridan Downey, pension "scrip" advocate, in the vote. (International News Photo)

Pension Sponsor Leads McAdoo in Calif. Vote

12,438 precincts gave Downey 173,036 votes to 141,649 for McAdoo who was commended and supported by President Roosevelt.

In the race for Democratic nomination for governor, the great bulk of votes went to liberal state Senator Culbert L. Olson, who expressed mild sympathy for the plan, and to Congressman John F. Dockweiler, most vigorous supporter of the pension. With nearly double the Dockweiler vote, Olson claimed the nomination.

Olson had 195,755 votes to 87,075 for Dockweiler, with 6955 precincts reported.

In 5623 precincts Governor Frank F. Merriam had 123,890 for the Republican nomination to 51,804 for Lieutenant Governor George J. Hatfield.

PENSION PLAN "UNSOUND"

Phil Bancroft had 82,734 votes for the Republican senatorial nomination from 6055 precincts, against 68,721 for Ray L. Riley, state railroad commissioner.

Influence of the $30-a-week pension proposal, which was not even on the ballot, appeared in the vote for several other major candidates.

President Roosevelt censured the proposal as "Utopian" and McAdoo said it was "unsound."

Kelly Flays Hurley, Curley Labor Stands

By ALFRED D. WHELTON

Lieutenant-Governor Francis E. Kelly today continued his attacks on Governor Hurley and former-Governor Curley on their labor record—a record on which, Kelly stated, organized labor refused to endorse them.

At overflow Jamaica Plain rallies in the Grover Cleveland School and Arbeiter Hall, Kelly declared he was "the peoples' candidate" and the strongest Democrat in the fight for governor. He said:

"The purpose of the Democratic party is to give the Democratic voters an opportunity to select the candidate with the most progressive and outstanding record of public service. Kelly has proved, by his record and his progressive platform, that he is the strongest Democrat."

* * *

Governor Hurley attacked the platforms and records of all three of his opponents in an address in which he specifically struck at two of Lieutenant Governor Kelly's campaign pledges—one concerning free electric light bulbs and the other on "open" meetings of the Executive Council.

Hurley said Kelly, as a lawyer, knew the Supreme Court had ruled a law compelling free distribution of light bulbs would be unconstitutional and that the State Constitution gives the governor no vote in the Council to force open meetings.

* * *

Lieutenant-Governor Kelly will address an open air rally at Bowdoin square, West End, tonight, after which he will attend rallies at the Edward Everett School, Pleasant street, Dorchester, and the Municipal Building, Shawmut ave. and Brookline street, South End.

* * *

Former Governor Curley has two Boston appearances scheduled tonight, one at the Timilty School, Roxbury, and the other at the Blackstone School, the West End.

* * *

Joseph C. White, Democratic candidate for lieutenant-governor, plans a visit to the Fitchburg area tonight for organization meetings.

* * *

Robert Gardiner Wilson, Jr., Republican aspirant for lieutenant-governor, declared today he is the only one of the six candidates who would add strength to the G. O. P. state ticket, pointing to his six victories as a Boston city councillor in a strong Democratic district.

Hopkins Silent On Purge Vote

RYE BEACH, N. H., Aug. 31—Bad new from South Carolina failed to spoil New Dealer Harry Hopkins' beauty sleep today.

He arose late at James Roosevelt's summer home at Little Boar's Head and postponed reading the newspapers until noon.

Then and not until then—he learned details of failure of the Roosevelt's "purge" in South Carolina.

He wouldn't comment on the South Carolina vote or the apparent rout of California's Senator McAdo, who ran with a Roosevelt blessing.

"I'm just vacationing here for a couple of days," Hopkins said. "Then I'll go back to Washington."

"You and Jim Roosevelt aren't cooking up and New Deal 'purge' in Massachusets, are you?" he was asked.

His answer was emphatic:

"No!".

MOTHER SAYS NO TO 400'S SOCKER

NEWPORT R. I., Aug. 31 —Mother said "NO" today! It was a big, cross, don't-answer-me-back "NO."

It landed like a solar plexus jolt right in the midriff of the prize ring aspirations of handsome young Robert J. Banigan "Socker" Sullivan.

A former Princeton boxing team captain, a member of the ultra-exclusive Dunes Club here, and the heavyweight "White Hope of Newport's 400," Sullivan was all set to climb through the ropes tonight.

He was due to make a bid for amateur title honors in a slambang go in Manny Almeida's Crescent Park arena at Providence.

HER "NO" DECISIVE

Newport's sun-tanned debutantes expected to see their dance partner and stag-line pal, "Socker" Sully, mop up stocky, dark-browed Tony Juliano, from the other side of the railroad tracks, and toss his battered remnants to the sea gulls.

Only—Mother Sullivan said "NO!"

Mother is wealthy and socially prominent Mrs. Robert J. Banigan Sullivan.

Her name is in the Blue Book. Her summer home at Point Judith is a show place.

'HIS MA GOT SORE'

"Dutchy" McCoy, "Socker's" trainer and manager, was only able to say:

"Aw, the kid's going back to Princeton. His ma got sore at the fight racket, I guess. Too bad, at that. Socker might have made a champ, if I could have handled him."

Held in Error Free Prisoner

After serving more than two years in state prison, John E. O'Malley, 35, alias John Vinall, of Cambridge, won a Supreme Court ruling today that he had been unconstitutionally sentenced.

A five to seven year sentence was imposed in Middlesex Superior Court by Judge Thomas H. Dowd after O'Malley, a Filipino, was found guilty by a jury of being "a common and notorious thief"—commonly calling for a jail sentence.

In upholding the claim of the prisoner that his alleged crime did not warrant a state prison term, Justice James J. Ronan revoked the sentence and remanded O'Malley to Superior Court for new disposition of the case.

Judge Ronan also recommended that the state pay the costs of the successful writ of error brought by the prisoner.

'It's Not True' Phones Bette Of Rift Story

It's not true, Bette Davis told the Boston Evening American today. The blonde and beautiful Newton screen star is in Nevada "just on vacation" and not with thoughts of divorce, she told this paper in an exclusive long distance telephone interview.

International News Photograph Service

DENIES RUMORS—Bette Davis, film star, located by the Boston Evening American at Glenbrook, Nev., emphatically declared she is only on a vacation jaunt and not seeking "Renovation" from her hubby, Harmon Nelson, orchestra leader.

"I haven't the slightest thought of a divorce," the talented film actress declared in denying stories of a rift with her husband, Harmon Nelson handsome orchestra leader. She talked from Glenbrook, Nev.

TRIP CAUSED COMMENT

"I'm here only for a 10-day vacation and then I'll be back at work in Hollywood," she added. "If there's any other report, it's not true.

"Nevada seems to be sort of a dangerous state. I've found that my trip here has caused lots of comment and I'm beginning to think I picked the wrong place fo a vacation.

"I came here for quiet and rest, but now I think I will move on to Lake Tahoe before returning to the studio. You may say that my husband is busy in New York with his music and that we have no thoughts of divorce."

Miss Davis arrived at Glenbrook with her sister, Mrs. Robert Pelgram, and refused to see an army of reporters, all eager to obtain the usual Reno confirmation.

PLEASED WITH ROLE

She laughed a bit about her rumored role as Scarlett in "Gone With the Wind," but was most enthusiastic over her coming casting in the role of the Nun in "The Miracle."

Coming Home to Newton soon?

"I am sorry, but I don't believe I'll be East for nearly a year. I have much work ahead of me and am most happy over what the studio has prepared for me.

"Right now, I'm interested in just a short rest and getting back to business again."

Auto Inspection Ready to Begin

The annual fall compulsory inspection of motor vehicles will start tomorrow, Registrar Frank A. Goodwin announced today, with owners given the month of September to get their cars in condition.

After Sept. 15, inspectors will be out in force, stopping and testing all vehicles without stickers.

'SON' AT MAY YOHE RITES

The "son" she denied and the aging husband who shared the poverty and obscurity of her later years were fellow mourners today at May Yohe's simple funeral.

After brief services at a Roxbury undertaking parlor, her body was borne to Forest Hills cemetery for cremation.

Captain John Smuts, her third husband, a Boer war veteran, said he would comply with her expressed wish and scatter her ashes on the sea.

STRIPPED OF WEALTH

In death, as in life, May Yohe was followed by the ironic fate which once made her the stage darling of two continents, the protege of royalty and the owner of the ill-starred Hope diamond, then stripped her of beauty and wealth and popularity.

That same fate today decreed that no child of her own, no kinfolk of her blood, should stand at May Yohe's bier.

Instead, conspicuous among the handful of mourners, was the "son" the courts decreed to be no son of May's at all.

A BIT PLAYER

Using the name, Robert E. Thomas, by which he is known as a "bit" actor in Hollywood, he sought several years ago to have himself declared an offspring of the romantic union of May Yohe and Putnam Bradlee Strong of New York, her second husband.

Young Thomas' parentage was ruled "unknown."

Yet when others forgot May Yohe today, he remembered. And he rode in her short and humble funeral procession.

Czechs Tell Britain War Due Sept. 15

LONDON, Aug. 31 (INS)—Czechoslovakia has informed Britain that she expects Germany to resort to force shortly after September 15, International News Service learned exclusively today that Czechoslovak Premier Milan Hodza informed Basil Cochrane Newton, British minister to Prague, that this belief is based on information obtained by Czechoslovakian secret agents.

Belief that the British government had received new and sensational news was supported when United States Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy called on British Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax early this morning.

Officials of the American embassy claimed that Kennedy was merely obtaining further information regarding developments in the Nazi-Czech crisis, and that his appointment with Lord Halifax was arranged yesterday, when he ws informed of developments by Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain.

It was believed, nevertheless, that his call at the foreign office may have been to hear the startling news that was transmitted to the British government from Hodza.

(Editor's Note: On Saturday, Aug. 27, H. R. Knickerbocker, is an exclusive dispatch from Paris and published in the Boston Evening American, revealed that alarming reports had reached France that Hitler had decided to use his mobilized forces to enforce his claims in Czechoslovakia if they were not satisfied by Sept. 15.)

The information relayed to London is to the effect that Hitler has been angered by refusal of the Prague government to grant full autonomy to the Sudeten Germans and that he wants to settle the issue quickly.

If necessary, it is stated, the Fuehrer is fully prepared to use force.

According to the Czechoslovakian report, German generals are described as having great difficulty in "restraining" Hitler from some sudden move which, according to the warnings Britain has sent to Berlin, might plunge all Europe into war, with the British fighting on the side of the democracies.

This report from Premier Hodza, coupled with its own disturbing diplomatic advices and the gigantic military preparations under way in Germany, is responsible for the grave view of the situation taken by the British government.

It is also responsible for the decision taken by Prime Minister Chamberlain and his cabinet ministers at their meeting yesterday to send British Ambassador Sir Nevile Henderson back to Berlin in time to convey a warning to Hitler, through diplomatic channels, before the Fuehrer starts writing the speech he will make to the Nazi party congress at Nuremberg.

Henderson took off by plane for Berlin today to convey the British warning and a report on the British cabinet's decision to German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop for transmission to Hitler.

Meanwhile, despite the disturbing nature of the Czechoslovakian report, British officials still hope that Hitler can be persuaded to refrain from resorting to force.

Sudeten Party Rift Adds to Czech Puzzle

PRAHA, Aug. 31 (AP)—A growing split in the Sudeten German party complicated today the solution of the long-standing dispute between Czechs and Sudetens over minority rights.

The radical element of the Nazi-suported Sudeten party wanted to reject a government compromise suggestion to meet Sudeten demands for autonomy.

A more conservative group—which fears that a war would be largely fought on Sudeten territory—is urging that the government's plan for self-governing Cantons be accepted as a basis for negotiations.

Between the two Sudeten factions was Fuehrer Konrad Henlein. He had not spoken the decisive word.

French People Plan for War

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
International News Service Staff Correspondent
(Copyright, 1938)

PARIS, Aug. 31—Germany's mobilized troops, growing steadily in number for her unprecedented maneuvers, were estimated today to have passed 1,500,000, or more than double the French peace-time standing army, while Chancellor Hitler's new order retaining a whole class another month will give the Reich 2,000,000 armed men by October 1.

Under this mighty threat the governments of both France and England, while discussing the possibility of counter-mobilization, in the guise of maneuvers, have decided for the time being to make one more appeal to Hitler by diplomatic means.

At the same time, France, with part of her forces maneuvering near the German border, remained determined to aid Czechoslovakia in the event of a German invasion.

THREAT UNITES FRANCE

Meanwhile, it was evident that the German threat has done something which appeared impossible, it has united the French parties of the left and right against an external enemy.

Jacques Doriot, perhaps the most influential French Fascist leader, and a well known pro-Hitlerite, has ordered his followers and asked others, to decline the customary invitations to the Nuremberg Nazi party congress.

The shadow of disaster is now so deep that individual citizens for the first time since the World War have begun to make arrangements to meet the new one.

Supplies of ready cash, gasoline and even groceries are being laid in by those who recollect that the first days of war would mean closing of banks, with the government requistioning motor fuel, and a temporary shortage of food.

CALM IN WAR PERIL

What makes this crisis differ from foregoing ones is the fact that the possibility of catastrophe is now being discussed dispassionately, with hair-raising calm, as something to be taken for granted.

Virtually every item of current news is regarded as bad. Germany has placed a big order for Canadian wheat, half to be delivered Sept. 15 and half Oct. 1, obviously for a military reserve.

Hitler's visit to Kehl, just across the French border from Strasbourg, to stare at the country he declared in "Mein Kampf" must be destroyed, has underlined the impression here that the crisis is all the more serious because it is Hitler's own creation, unlike previous ones initiated by Marshal Goering, Propaganda Minister Goebbels, and other lieutenants.

"BLUFF" GOES TOO FAR

If Hitler's mobilization originally was intended as a bluff, it is now felt it has gone too far. The essence of a bluff is the ability of the bluffer to back down, whereas each day makes it more difficult for Hitler to demobilize his vast army without some striking success.

The impression here is that Hitler apparently does not yet believe that England and France will fight over Czechoslovakia, but still trusts to the possibility of "localizing the conflict."

Hitler in Mountains, Aide to Get British Plea

BERLIN, Aug. 31 (INS)—Completing his inspection tour of western German fortifications, Reichsfuehrer Hitler returned to his Bavarian mountain retreat at Berchtesgaden today as the British ambassador sped to Berlin with a new message warning him of the consequences of armed action in Czechoslovakia.

Decision of the Fuehrer to rest at Berchtesgaden meant the dashing of British hopes for a personal meeting between him and Sir Nevile Henderson, envoy on his way here from Britain's newest approach in behalf of peace.

Henderson will be received by Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop, who cancelled a scheduled appointment to hear Britain's message and report on it to Hitler.

'Keep Cool,' Says Kennedy

from a mid-morning conference with Lord Halifax, British foreign secretary.

"I have just this moment returned to the embassy from a talk with Lord Halifax," Kennedy declared.

"I'm afraid I cannot tell you half what you would like to know but I can promise that there is nothing this morning to further lend fears to the European situation."

Asked if the English public was solidly behind the cabinet in the crisis, the Boston-born envoy said:

"Yes, very strongly so."

"However," he added quickly, "the Britons won't lose their heads."

Asked if there was not something encouraging to report in the situation this morning, Kennedy replied:

"It certainly is not any more discouraging. At this stage of the game, that's a lot to be thankful for."

Kennedy also admitted that he awaited similar conferences to that which took him to Lord Halifax and the foreign office this morning, adding:

"I'm going to stay right here."

"Don't worry too much . . . things aren't so discouraging . . . don't let us lose our heads," was his final message on European affairs.

Several of the Kennedy children are returning from vacations today, the ambassador said. "I expect the rest home within the next few days and they will be in school next month," he said.

"We are all well here and send our love to the folks and best wishes to all our friends in Boston."

William Roberts, 24, of Shawmut avenue, South End, was arrested on a charge of registering bets while nine others were held on a charge of being present where gaming implements were found.

TOKYO, Aug. 31 (AP) — The Japanese government tonight rejected on all counts the protest of the United States against the destruction of a Chinese-American airliner near Canton, South China, by Japanese warplanes on Aug. 24.

Women Voters Hail New Deal, End Hub Parley

The regional conference of women Democrats from 10 Northeastern states wound up its two-day session at the Hotel Statler today in a chorus of praise for the New Deal and its presidential leader.

Less than 24 hours before the delegates had listened to Public Works Administrator Harry Hopkins as he sounded the party keynote.

"The program of the New Deal is sane, forward-looking and practical" declared Mrs. May Thompson Evans, assistant director of the women's division, Democratic national committee, in a parting message to the conference.

"Even the opposition agrees with us in this," Mrs. Evans added. "They are doing their utmost, however, to obscure the issues in a mixture of frenzied fancy, false stimulation and partisan politics."

Social legislation and federal relief under the Roosevelt administration were described by Miss Gertrude Ely, former Pennsylvania director of WPA white-collar projects, as "a great welding power" between the states.

Quiz Jail Folk In Revel Probe

Women inmates, guards and male prisoners at the Dedham jail and county farm were being questioned today in a triple probe of alleged liquor orgies and lax discipline in the two Norfolk County institutions.

The county commissioners have already questioned the farm superintendent, Herbert Shortman, and one of his guards, and Shortman has been asked for a written report on conditions.

Sheriff Samuel Capen and Commissioner Arthur T. Lyman have joined on the jail phase of the probe and Dist. Atty. Edmund R. Dewing is quietly conducting his own investigation into the accusations of widespread jail and farm "irregularities."

Sheriff Capen, Commissioner Lyman and the commissioners will meet on Tuesday to sift all the evidence uncovered.

Uppermost on the list of complaints which have reached the ears of the investigators was an alleged parade of women prisoners in scanty attire on the jail grounds.

Some of the women charged that male guards attempted to solicit them as they passed to and from their cells but this report has been denied by the sheriff.

Commissioner Lyman said he had received complaints from jail inmates that brawls were frequent at thecounty farm and that female prisoners had been molested by guards.

Singing Pickets Push Garment Union Fight

More pickets, to march in an endless line, were thrown into the fight today by the International Ladies' Garment Workers Union in its effort to unionize three Kneeland street garment companies.

Shouting, singing, pushing, stopping foot and auto traffic and arguing with police, 300 pickets were on duty in the area where the strike has been in progress since Thursday.

Rose Perlotta, union official, announced that Boston's 5000 garment workers would go onto a "stagger work system," so that the picket line would march 24 hours a day until union contracts are negotiated.

Following the plea for peace yesterday by Anna Weinstock, federal labor conciliator, the union called on its international vice president, Frederick C. Umley, to come to Boston for a meeting between the union and employers.

So far, 61 of the pickets have been arrested by police on various charges. Their cases are to come up in Municipal Court, Sept. 13.

Philip Kramer, business agent of the joint board of Cloak, Suit ard Dressmakers Union of the International Ladies Garment Workers, complained to Police Superintendent Edward W. Fallon that strikers had been roughly handled by the police.

Lynn Boy Scorns Dog Free Gift

A penniless newsboy and his dog found an unexpected friend when they faced Judge Ralph W. Reeve today in Lynn District Court.

The lad, Gregory Harootian, 15, of Goldthwait street, Lynn, was haled into court for failure to pay the annual fee for his canine pal.

"I only make 75 cents a day selling papers," pleaded the boy, "and I turn every penny of it over to my mother to help feed our family."

Judge Reeve leaned towards the lad and said:

"If I gave you some time to raise the license fee do you think you could save the two dollars the city demands?"

"Yes sir," replied Gregory, "and Ill work harder than ever for your kindness."

"Case dismissed," intoned the bench. But—

In the corridor a group of police officers and court attaches volunteered to contribute the much-needed two dollars for the fee.

"No thanks," retorted the lad, "I am going out and show Judge Reeve that I can make good and keep my part of the bargain."

Atty. Jeffery Rites Held

Funeral services for Richard E. Jeffery, 72, Boston lawyer, were held today from Waterman Chapel, Commonwealth avenue, with burial in Forest Hills Cemetery. He succumbed to a heart attack at his home, Winchester street, Brookline.

Born in California, he graduated from Yale University law school in 1892, and opened a law office in Boston a year later. He was a member of Worcester Lodge, A. F. and A. M., New Haven, Ct., the Yale Club of Boston, and of the Boston City Club.

ARCHIE E. NOBLE

Archie E. Noble, 62, president of the Watertown Lumber Company, was buried today from his home, Russell avenue, Watertown, with interment in Waltham.

In the lumber business for 37 years, he was a director of the Waltham Trust Company and of the Union Market National Bank, Watertown. He was a former president of the Watertown Rotary Club, and a former director of the Belmont Springs Country Club.

Oust Norwood Town Manager

Town Manager William Kendrick was ousted in Norwood today—and the town faces an election within 35 days as a result.

Selectmen John Mutch, Herbert B. Brady and Sture Nelson voted Kendrick out of his $5100-a-year job for "non-cooperation," the same charge for which the former manager, Clarence Bingham, was ousted in 1933.

Hutch, w' led the fight against Kendrick, was the same one who fought for Bingham five years ago.

Clement Riley, citizen and auto dealer, filed recall papers against the three selectmen and as a result the election must be held.

Court Weighs Coakley Poll Ban

The full bench of the Supreme Court met in extraordinary session today to deliberate the merits of the petition filed by Robert E. Bigney of South Boston to remove the name of Daniel H. Coakley from the September primary ballots.

Bigney and Coakley, present incumbent, are opposing candidates for the Democratic nomination for the berth of governor's councillor in the 4th district.

Bigney's petition alleges that Coakley is not a resident of the 4th district and is, therefore, disqualified from seeking the votes of its electorate as a governor's council candidate.

Patent Leather Industry Wage Scale Holds

By JOHN W. ENGLISH

The state board of arbitration and conciliation, following hearings, has ruled that the present rate of wages shall remain the same in the patent leather industry. Manufacturers in Woburn and Winchester sought to reduce wages, claiming non-union wages paid by a manufacturer in another Massachusetts city made it impossible for them to make a profit.

That "there is a lack of understanding by both employers and employes, of the provisions of their own agreement," in several plants of the sausage manufacturers of New England, is the conclusion of experts engaged by the Massachusetts State Board of Arbitration and Conciliation to investigate conditions for the purpose of conciliating differences.

Gerald J. Connor, president of the Industrial Insurance Agents' Union, Local 41, of the United Office and Professional Workers of America, C. I. O., has announced the American Federation of Labor has withdrawn from the election to be held soon among 650 John Hancock insurance agents in Greater Boston, according to a communication from the Massachusetts labor relations commission. The election was ordered by the commission last month, based on hearings held last February.

Call 2 Lawyers In Graves Trial

Two nationally-known corporation lawyers will be among a score of government witnesses which Asst. Dist. Atty. Fred T. Doyle has summoned for the Sept. 14 trial of Frederick H. Graves, alleged perjurer.

In disclosing the trial plans today, Atty. Doyle also said he hoped to be able to subpoena a "prominent" St. Louis woman with whom Graves is alleged to have discussed his testimony against James M. Curley in the now famous General Equipment Company $85,000 damage settlement case.

Boston After Dark

BY GEORGE HOLLAND

A MAESTRO'S BATON is what Jimmy Foxx, the Red Sox hero, will be waving instead of a bat at the close of the season . . . There are a couple of "ifs" . . . One is a show of interest on the part of nightclub and dance-hall owners who are being canvassed by Harry Drake acting as representative for Double-X . . . Another "if" is the possibility of organizing a good band to take direction from Jimmy, who is not a musician.

Johnny Farrell, Boston veteran actor and recently of the staff of Dinty Moore's restaurant, has been signed by Eddie Dowling for an important role in Dowling's forthcoming production, "Here Come the Clowns" . . . Claude Gruenher, the Shubert press-agent, paid his first visit of the season to Boston in the interests of the new Olsen and Johnson musical, "Hellzapoppin" . . .

Mr. Wyner offered your envoy 100-1 that it will be Duchin's band, not Jack Marshard's, which will accompany Sally at the Plaza's Persian Room (Note: He was taken).

"So? Then why are you standing out here?" came the answer . . . And the suspicious "customer" walked away.

Once Over Lightly:

Miss Ann Hill, who owns one of Baltimore's leading downtown beauty shops, made a tour of the nightspots with Jacques Renard's band at the Westminster winning the longest audience . . . Al Moore, who was a Representative before he toured the country as leader of the U. S. Naval Band after the war, is running for a seat in the house from Jamaica Plain . . .

Ann Sheridan, Norris Part

Divorce for Her, Stage for Him

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 31—Ann Sheridan has bidden her husband Edward Norris, goodbye and wished him well in his plan to return to the Broadway stage. Their parting is final and in a few weeks she will seek her freedom in the divorce court.

Rumbles of their domestic woes have been rumored repeatedly but always Norris, who was a stock player at M-G-M and Ann, who is Warner Brothers' favorite red-haired glamour girl denied any trouble.

Hollywood has been better to the girl from Texas than it has to her husband who recently ended his contract. She played opposite James Cagney in "Angels With Dirty Faces" and did as well she will again be Cagney's leading lady in "Broadway Bill." Perhaps if Norris had been able to keep pace with his pretty wife their separation might have been avoided, but as is often the case when there are two people in the family in the acting profession, there are quarrels and unhappiness.

Jack Benny will have to shave those whiskers he grew on his vacation and Dorothy Lamour will park her sarong for "Man About Town." Dorothy, who is Paramount's exotic glamour girl, has been squawking about never having a chance to wear pretty clothes but she ought to be happy now for she will be a regular fashion plate in her role of a musical comedy queen.

This is Jack's next movie, and it follows "St. Louis Blues" for Dorothy, getting into work about November 14. Naturally there will be songs by Lamour and laughs by Benny.

Don Ameche's recovery hasn't been as rapid as the public has been led to believe. After Darryl Zanuck had a look at him he decided Don wasn't in any shape to face the hot lights necessary for technicolor so he took him out of "Kentucky" and sent him to June Lake to recuperate.

Richard Greene, whom 20th Century-Fox will tell you is beginning to get a huge amount of fan mail, goes into the Ameche role opposite Loretta Young. At the preview of "My Lucky Star" they had to send scouts out the back way there were so many youngsters waiting to get him for autographs.

One of the fascinating stories of Hollywood is that of Alexander D'Arcy, who has just applied for citizenship papers and who is appearing in "Paper Takes a Trip." His real name is Alexander Fabre Effiatoun Boy and his father is a bona fide Egyptian prince who owns magnificent estates both in Egypt and France, the latter being Alex's mother's country.

One night Countess D'Arcy, who had visited her family in Cairo, said: "Come on to dinner, Effiatoun Boy. We will laugh and Walter Winchell said: 'Why I never knew I had an Australian

Benchley Short At South Station

What is perhaps the most hilarious short of the month is Robert Benchley in "Much Ado About Nothing," now on the current bill at the South Station Theater. Norma Duos With Tyrone

Gala New Movie Season Opens

In MGM's gorgeous new film "Marie Antoinette," the lovely Norma Shearer is paired for the first time with Tyrone Power. Here they are in a scene from the new Loew's State and Orpheum program opening tomorrow.

The new 1938-39 movie season will be opened at Loew's State and Orpheum theaters with the premiere of "Marie Antoinette" tomorrow.

The leading Hollywood producers have joined in a national campaign to make this season "Motion Picture Greatest Year," $250,000 in being offered in a Movie Quiz Contest season inducement to stir up enthusiasm.

"Marie Antoinette," first of the eventful productions, costars Norma Shearer and Tyrone Power with John Barrymore, Anita Louise and a brilliant cast of supporting players.

After this will come three outstanding MGM productions. First, Robert Montgomery, Janet Gaynor and Franchot Tone in the romantic comedy "Three Loves Has Nancy." Next, Spencer Tracy and Mickey Rooney co-star in "Boys Town." Then Clark Gable and Myrna Loy in a new adventure romance "Too Hot To Handle."

For RKO Orpheum Loew's has scheduled Katharine Brush's "Listen Darling" with Judy Garland, Freddie Bartholomew, Mary Astor and Walter Pidgeon. Wallace Beery with Mickey Rooney will also be featured in "Stable Mates."

Three outstanding musical productions may also be expected for the early fall season. Victor Herbert's operetta, "Sweethearts" in Technicolor, stars Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy. Another Celebrated musical is Sidney Franklin's production of "The Great Waltz" in which Luise Rainer stars with Fernand Gravet. The third musical of the season is a 1938 swing time musical featuring Eleanor Powell.

A company is now on location in the Rockies completing scenes for "Northwest Passage" from the best-selling novel by Kenneth Roberts. Another famous novel, A. J. Cronin's "The Citadel," will also appear on Loew's screen during the fall season with Robert Donat and Rosalind Russell.

Loew's has also signed with United Artists for early showings of "The Young in Heart," with Janet Gaynor, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Paulette Goddard and Roland Young.

Sidney, the youngster who was an individual success in "Elephant Boy," returns in the leading role of another adventure of India, Rudyard Kipling's "Drums." Gary Cooper will be the cowboy in "The Cowboy and the Lady," a Samuel Goldwyn production with Merle Oberon.

Myrna Loves 'Easy To Handle' Coiffure

"Easy to Handle" that's the generally becoming hair-dress label Myrna Loy has given her ever evolved for her new coiffure. She's paraphrased it after her current film, "Too Hot To Handle," coming soon to both Loew's State and Orpheum and co-starring her with Clark Gable.

Following, but not copying the upward trend in hair styles, the tresses have been cut short to what is known as the "childish" length. Then it has been softly pulled under all around and kept close to the head.

Luise Rainer who for two years in succession has won the Academy Award will return to the screen in a brilliant spectacular role as the wife of Johann Strauss in The Waltz King, in this musical extravaganza.

A. J. Cronin's "The Citadel," is another best seller to be filmed and come to both the State and Orpheum. Robert Donat, star of "The Ghost Goes West" and Rosalind Russell will play the leading roles.

Among other stars fulfilling their quota of assignments are Freddie Bartholomew, Judy Garland and Walter Pidgeon in Loew's Inc.'s Listen Darling. Robert Montgomery and Janet Gaynor are co-starred in "Three Loves Has Nancy."

Young Stars In New Hits

Mickey Rooney and Spencer Tracy are two new features to be shown at both Loew's State and Orpheum theaters in the near future in "Boys Town." Mickey is the star of the picture while Tracy is an MGM film. Shortly after he will be seen with Wallace Beery in Stable Mates, a story of horse-racing.

Judy Garland and Freddie Bartholomew will share starring honors with Mary Astor and Walter Pidgeon in "Listen Darling."

Gary Tames 'Em

Gary Cooper and Merle Oberon enjoy life on the ranch in "The Cowboy and the Lady," which will be one of the feature attractions to inaugurate the new movie season coming soon at both Loew's State and Orpheum Theaters.

They Swing It, Sentimental Too

Music both swing and sentimental will be featured in the new movie season offerings at Loew's. It looks like a lively competition with neither type predominating.

"The Great Waltz," a lavish production based on the music of Johann Strauss, is a starring vehicle for Academy Award Winner Luise Rainer. Fernand Gravet who first won popularity for his successful part in "The King and the Chorus Girl," has the important role of Composer Strauss.

Definitely on the "swing" side is "Honolulu," MGM's musical romance of Hawaii with Eleanor Powell as the leading star.

Returns as Queen

Despite heat, summer competition and other obstacles that come to the Motion Theater industry, "Marie Antoinette" has proven to be an exception. We say this because of the successful road showing it has been enjoying. It opened at two-a-day scale of prices at the Astor Theater, August 16, and is playing to capacity one of the very few theaters (if not the only one) on Broadway which can make that boast. New York movie critics laud Norma Shearer and "Marie" to the skies.

Local movie fans will now be able to see this great MGM picture, popular prices prevailing, for it is scheduled to open at the State and Orpheum tomorrow.

Loew's Bills

Today will be the last day at both Loew's State and Orpheum to see "Algiers," romantic melodrama starring Charles Boyer opposite Hedy Lamarr and Sigrid Gurie. Co-featured is MGM's "Rich Man, Poor Girl."

Beginning tomorrow, "Marie Antoinette" will be the attraction at both Loew's houses.

Novels on Screen

Coming in the near future to the screens of both the Loew's State and Orpheum theaters will be A. J. Cronin's "Citadel," widely read document of a physician's life, with Robert Donat, remembered for his successful performances in "The 39 Steps," and "The Ghost Goes West." Mr. Donat portrays the role of Doctor Manson and Rosalind Russell is Christine.

Kenneth Roberts' immensely popular Northwest Passage" will bring another Tracy to the same screen in the form of Spencer Tracy, co-starred with him in this exciting tale of pre-Revolutionary times are Robert Taylor and Virginia Bruce.

BOSTON AMERICAN
BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 31, 1938

Drop That Hand!

The Editor Says:

The City Council was elected to serve Boston and to work for the city's progress and prosperity.

We said that last week. Now we say it again for it becomes increasingly apparent that some members of the municipal government have to be reminded of WHY and FOR WHAT PURPOSE they and you elected them to office.

It is clear to everybody that the proposed establishment of an EXPRESS bus line between Boston and Fall River would create hundreds of jobs from the Southeastern part of the State to spend money in Boston.

As it has been frequently explained absence of late-hour railroad service compels these visitors to return home in the late afternoon or early evening. And that, of course causes theaters, restaurants and stores to suffer.

But, for some mysterious reason, the City Council stubbornly refuses to sanction the bus line.

Nor the slightest attention seems to be given to the facts that dollars much needed here are going elsewhere and that all municipal bodies along the route, with the sole exception of Boston's, favor the new transportation.

It is to be hoped that Mayor Tobin, pledged as he is to promote prosperity, will put an end to this myopic lethargy in the Council.

THE LAST CHANCE for Massachusetts men and women to register to vote in the primaries on September 20 comes today. After ten o'clock tonight no registrations can be accepted.

Good citizenship requires every eligible person to make himself a voter. Little time and no expense are involved. Registration places are conveniently located in ALL towns and cities, from Boston to the Berkshires.

The approaching elections, including the primaries, are important. The candidates nominated and elected will hold a large measure of our collective and individual destinies in their hands.

Therefore, it is more necessary than ever before that the BIGGEST REGISTRATION in the Commonwealth's history will assure the selection of officials truly representative of the views and wishes of the greatest possible number of our people.

BOSTON IS GRATEFUL to the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the Disabled American Veterans of the World War who have voted to hold their organizations' national conventions here next year.

Boston would do her utmost to give their former soldiers the best time of their lives.

They will find us a friendly people and this New England metropolis a happy combination of the old and the new.

Good luck to the reports that the Marine Corps League will come here for its convention in 1939 and the almost certain decision of the American Legion to come here a year later.

Trade union and proximity make us the CONVENTION CITY OF THE EAST. We welcome the opportunity to prove it to the nation, particularly to our good friends, the war veterans.

The Political Parade

By GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31

WHAT Mr. Roosevelt may lack in consistence and in this he has even Senator Ashurst hanging on the ropes - he more than makes up for in persistence.

Nature has a method of her own in striking a balance in these things.

Why is the President centering every power at his command upon the political extermination of a certain group of Democratic senators, and waging relentless war upon them in every state in which he has even an outside chance to win?

Few questions are more puzzling. It might be assumed that the President is resolved to return to his attack upon the Supreme Court and seeks to be rid of senators opposed to its packing. But the Supreme Court now eats from the New Deal hand. That issue no longer burns.

It is never safe to rely upon coincidence for coincidence is one of the commonplaces of life.

But there would seem to be a very close connection between the President's attempted purge of the Senate and an event in Canada of recent occurrence. It may be that here we have cause and effect.

• • •

WHAT many believe is the explanation of why he has been thwarted in the past by the senate still has close to Mr. Roosevelt's heart. The answer was revealed in the Ogdensburg speech.

There he returned to the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence deep-waterway power project. He revealed his determination to carry that out at all cost.

The St. Lawrence waterway project is in reality a vast power project and the socialization of electric power is one of the most ardently sought of New Deal objectives as witness TVA, and the great enterprises in Oregon and Washington, the scheme to convert the entire union of sovereign states into seven regional power authorities.

Balked in the Senate the President has now revealed that he proposes to try again.

But this St. Lawrence project cannot be accomplished by a mere law, requiring but a majority vote in Congress, but by a treaty, the ratification of which requires a two-thirds vote in the Senate.

• • •

IN SEARCHING for a common denominator for the senatorial purge, one comes by logic to the St. Lawrence Great Lakes waterway treaty, at the very moment the President is reviving that proposal on Canadian soil.

On March 14, 1934, the Senate rejected Mr. Roosevelt's St. Lawrence Treaty 46 to 42.

Here are the Democratic senators now on the purge list, who voted against the treaty:

Adams of Colorado, Byrd of Virginia, Clark of Missouri, George of Georgia, Lonergan of Connecticut, McCarran of Nevada, and Tydings of Maryland.

Obviously, if he may hope to have that treaty ratified, he must purge his Senate of as many as possible, and throw the fear of reprisal into the hearts of as many more as possible.

Mr. Roosevelt's purge, which started strong, but fizzled, appears to be based upon the necessity, as he sees it, of making a Senate to carry out this, and other policies.

The theory of mere political dislike and revenge falls to the ground.

The Brighter Side

"Way Down Upon The Swanee River"

By DAMON RUNYON

WE HAVE been reading a book called "Suwanee River," written by Cecile Hulse Matschat, which is one of a series of books on rivers of America being published by Farrar & Rinehart.

The other rivers so far covered in the series are the Kennebec, and the upper Mississippi and forthcoming volumes will deal with the Powder, the James, the Missouri, the Sacramento, the Columbia, the Hudson, the Ohio and the Arkansas.

The last named is the river we were raised up on, so to speak. It flows through our old home town of Pueblo and it is not a very pretty river, but quite historic. It waters a valley where they raise the best watermelons and cantaloupe in the world - the Rocky Fords.

The prettiest river in the United States is, of course, the Hudson. We do not think anyone will deny it that title. Some have called it the Rhine of America, but we think it is even prettier than the Rhine. Moreover the Hudson is the least mean spirited of all the rivers of America because it never permits itself to speak up on days along its banks and run them out of house and home.

Damon Runyon

The Suwanee is that calm River Matschat writes about in poetry but in prose though we will never come to love it as the lady tells us in this new book. It abounds in alligators, rattlesnakes, cottonmouth moccasins and other slimy critters for which we have practically no affection whatever.

The Suwanee pops out of the strange and mysterious Okefinokee Swamp of Georgia, a region we have skirted briefly in pursuit of game but never with any great zest. The Okefinokee is the address of more creeping, crawling things than you can shake a stick at and it is no place for a fellow whose nerves are completely shattered by the mere sight of a tadpole.

The Okefinokee and the Everglades are two spots in this country that we assiduously avoid and we will continue to avoid them until a modern St. Patrick comes along to give those snakes the heave-ho. We were in the Everglades once with a fellow poling us around a waterway in a boat and a cottonmouth moccasin dropped off a tree into the boat and gave us the fan-tods, so what we say about those Southern swamps now is not to have them.

The Suwanee winds a matter of 240 miles from the Okefinokee down across Florida to dump itself into the Gulf of Mexico 12 miles north of Cedar Keys. En route it picks up a number of other streams and takes them with it.

The Suwanee is perhaps the best known by name of any of our rivers because of Stephen Foster's song, though in that song you have got the "i" and sing it "Way Down Upon the Swanee River."

CECILE HULSE MATSCHAT is a woman writer, one of the best that has been heard from in a long time. She takes you feel all the green grass and mystery of the Okefinokee and gives you goose flesh letting of its crawling creatures but she also lets you in for much of the beauty of the Suwanee as it runs smoke to the gulf.

Her tales of the strange people and customs in the Okefinokee are terrific. They are like characters out of fiction speaking an old lingo of their own that brings in words of probably Elizabethan origin.

She describes the swamp people as wary and suspicious of outlanders and strong and sturdy despite close intermarriage down through the years.

We think Cecile Hulse Matschat has made the story of the Suwanee positively thrilling and we would probably hasten at once to view the ground she covers in her book if it were not for those snakes.

You tell where snakes are, and then go bet that is where we will never be found.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

WHEN love dies, a woman closes the door of her heart and locks it IN, where she can dream over it; a man closes the door of his heart and locks it OUT where he can forget it.

YOU CAN warm over a cold dinner; but once a man's love has begun to cool, there seems to be no way of de-frosting it.

MIDDLE-AGE is that point in life at which a woman begins to fill in time by worrying about her weight, and a man can think of nothing to get excited about except his golf-score and what-the-country-is-coming-to.

A MAN takes his marriage vows so easily. Before marriage he's too much in love to think about them; during the ceremony, he's too frightened to hear them; and after marriage, he's too busy to remember them.

A STENOGRAPHER automatically becomes a "private secretary" when she reaches the point where she knows everything about a man's business and his nothing.

TELLING a girl that you are married, proof and that she can never be anything but a beautiful episode in your life, is practically burning your bridges before you.

FUNNY, how a woman will run around to beauty parlors, have her face lifted and starve herself down to a shadow in order to hold a husband, whose love should be as secure as her back teeth!

Girl About Town by Marguerite Downey

IF YOU follow popular magazines very closely, you must know by now how those beauteous girl camera models live, what they eat and how they keep their figures. Seldom, however, do you read much about the "Apollo" in the ads.

Jack Barker, one of the top men in the business, who has just returned to his home town, Quincy, for his vacation, has some interesting inside information. Maybe you've never met him personally, but surely you've seen him many a time grinning at you out of a shaving cream magazine or have also noted his physique on breakfast food billboards.

Marguerite Downey

Of the 150 men in the business, twenty-five are always in demand. The collar ad type of good looks is rapidly going out of style and the industry prefers "Clark Gables" to dead ringers for Robert Taylor.

The boys are just as careful about their haircuts and figures as any of the girls. If you wear a thirty-eight suit weigh no more than 160 pounds and your arms are about five inches, fashion favors will be your forte. Of course you must be a bit tall. There's not a blind in the business. They often appear weak and are too difficult to photograph.

Most are athletic college men. Today every last man in the profession can play a championship game of hand-ball, squash or badminton. Fisher himself is a former Quincy High school football star.

His life reads like a press agent's paper dream. He shipped to sea at eighteen, served as a narcotic investigator, and when shoppering a yacht on Long Island was "discovered."

The last fortnight he's been dancing for Ray McLand in New York scenes of the Paramount picture, "Say It In French." On location he's had double for the lead in "One Third of A Nation." And who knows maybe Boston will country figure in Hollywood news credited with the sensation of giving the world another celebrated lover.

SOMETIMES night clubs foster friendships as binding as any found on the theater campus or elsewhere. Practically a three-cornered Damon-Pythias relationship exists among Eddy Vallee, Eddy Duchin and Jack Marshard.

It dates back to the period, in the early 20's, when the trio were struggling musicians with Bert Lowe's orchestra at the Statler.

Of course as most people know, Eddy and Eddy have enjoyed phenomenal success in the musical world. And, though it may not be so well known, Marshard is the current craze among Eastern debs — so much a current craze that he's moving next month into New York's Plaza.

Yet, despite the rewards of the years, the Eddy-Eddy Marshard trio look back with almost nostalgic longing to the good old days and the happy yesterday.

New York Cavalcade by Louis Sobol

CALENDAR OF A GOTHAMITE: If the Hines drama unfolding daily in the Supreme Court is as gripping, thrilling as the king reporter Elmer C. Hall portrays it, then I am missing the greatest thriller of the season and I must get a card to attend. I have covered only three great trials in my 25 years as a newspaper reporter. They were the Hall-Mills case, the Snyder-Gray trial and the Hauptmann case and of the three, the Hall-Mills was the most exciting for there were the girl, Mrs. Stevens, and the unpainted Mrs. Hall and Reverend Edward Wheeler Hall, pastor of the fashionable Episcopal church of the town, with Mills and I remember the indictment was returned when at the end of the trial even he was accused of the crime and his bewilderment. The Hall Mills case remains among the most baffling of all unsolved murders.

Louis Sobol

THE one thing spring water Irving Berlin is proud of even more sentimental as the success crowned years crowd in upon him. Lately, usually alone he has taken to journeying down to the Bowery section, revisiting old haunts that still remain, avoiding only such places where he fears he may be recognized. Someday soon I plan to make the sentimental journey with him and his only request is that, if possible his identity must not be exposed.

SOMEDAY I hope to visit that country store in North Stonington, Conn., where you may inspect all the sanitary that country store can and yet not buy one of them for there is a museum set up by George H. Stone, the jovial who once ran the general store in the center of town.

I remember another country store and I wonder if it still exists. It was in East Lynne, Ohio, and the farmer with whom we were staying took me along to help him buy his provisions. We not only bought the lanterns but also a keg of a bottle of cough syrup and two cents worth of white peppermint sticks.

The reason I remember all this as if it were yesterday is because no money passed over that counter. The storekeeper wrote a bill on a card with brownish butcher paper and wrote the figures in it. For days I wanted to go back there and splurge because it seemed to me I could be quite as perfect as was I with a dollar perfect then than to be able to buy anything I wanted without paying.

Senator Glass by Hugh S. Johnson

BETHANY BEACH, DEL.: Senator Carter Glass doesn't need any columnist to defend him against the verbal assaults of PWA Administrator Harold Ickes. But when "Honest" Harold gets so fearful that he has to hire a bodyguard that Carter Glass is a political hazard it is hard for one of the Ickes's victims to refrain from leaving a card of pop bottles.

General Johnson

It is human nature to enjoy a cat fight. It isn't so much fun when you have more than a stocking affection for both combatants. But when "Honest Harold" talks about Carter Glass "biting the hand that feeds him" he can be criticized the PWA spending it is too impertinent for silence.

If there is a man in government to whom the words "political hypocrite" don't apply it is Carter Glass. This little punch of independent dynamite has sat in Congress or the Cabinet for an average lifetime.

Everyone with whom he ever crossed swords came away with several punctures and an unlimited respect for a fair and honest fighter. Over all these years he never once compromised a principle for politics.

HERE'S AN INSTANCE of how great is this country's confidence in this and Mr. Roosevelt's knowledge of that confidence. It is also the story of the Senator's rift with the New Deal. In the 1932 campaign it was charged and had begun to be believed that Mr. Roosevelt, if elected, would ditch the currency and budget pledges of the Democratic platform. Democratic headquarters became panicky. Although Carter Glass was seriously ill, a frantic call went out to him to save the country. In the most lucid speech of the campaign, and upon the cold basis of personal assurance, he destroyed that attack by a pledge of his own faith in that promise.

Every part of it was pertinent, vital. That was when the Senator became an almost sacred relic. If there is "political hypocrisy" or rebellion it is not on the side of Carter Glass.

MORE IMPERTINENT still is the suggestion that opposition to the Senator's PWA spending is biting the feeding hand because Virginia got some of that spending.

The implications of this charge are baldly business are, politically, positively obscene. If Mr. Ickes withheld what Virginia deserves on any ground of the Senator's vote he would be engaging in political embezzlement.

If we are to use dog symbolism we can take some comfort in the fact that Harold's bite is worse than his bite. Virginia will still get hers. Harold just likes to hear himself growl. This time he picked the wrong terrier.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

THESE modern youngsters are a problem. I propose we...

Elsie Robinson

...crop yet and my money's on them every time. But I'm beginning to wonder about the hardships we're giving them. We mean well. No other nation ever tried so hard to give its children the right start—

But are we perhaps trying too much? IS THERE MAYBE, TOO MUCH GUIDANCE AND TOO LITTLE 'GIT OUT AND GIT UNDER IN THIS FREE NATIONAL SYSTEM?

Now, get me right. I am no [illegible] house" enthusiast. I do NOT believe that three R's and a wooden water bucket are all the equipment for the building mind. The more I'm strong for our modern schools and the well-daily equipped people who staff them. As for [illegible] to buildin' of my own kid under Marion [illegible] who is one of them.

BUT I'M STILL WONDERING WHETHER LITTLE WILLIE WILL BE FISH FLESH FOWL OR JUST A PRETTY TABLE DECORATION—WHEN THESE HIGH-POWERED SPECIALISTS GET THROUGH WITH HIM.

Perhaps I should explain that Little Willie happens to be my favorite job. I receive several hundred letters daily from him and his sire. Extremely frank and sometimes funny letters.

Generally speaking, Willie has just graduated from high or college when he writes to me and I start sweating for a job. What's wrong or unusual in that? Wasn't Willie's father and I angling for a job at his age?

But there's a world of difference in the WAY Dad and I got a job and the way Willie is looking.

When Dad at 17 needed a job he went after that job. He didn't wait for anyone to bring it to him. Also he didn't insist on a particular job. Any kind of job. A job for which he was suited by temperament or ability. He took ANY old job.

BUT WILLIE ISN'T LOOKING FOR A JOB THAT WAY. WE HAVEN'T LET HIM. IN FACT, WE'VE TAUGHT HIM THAT SUCH AN ATTITUDE IS AN UTTERLY STUPID ANTIQUATED, UNSCIENTIFIC, WASTEFUL AND GENERALLY SCREWBALL METHOD OF SEEKING EMPLOYMENT. YOU DON'T TAKE ANY OLD JOB THAT COMES ALONG IN 1938.

ACCORDINGLY from the time he enters kindergarten Willie gets an annual going-over that would serve the Queen Mary. He is tested, charted, analyzed, classified, certified, guarded and guided into the one path suited to his particular nature and steered from any possible mistake or misfortune. Each year the process is repeated and amplified until at last he emerges ready to face the world!

BUT IS WILLIE REALLY READY? NOT BY A JUGFUL!

Smatter of fact, no one could be more cruelly unprepared to face that tough ole man-killer—Harsh Reality. During all those plastic years, when he should have been learning to make up his stubborn, foolish young mind and face the unpleasant results, Willie has enjoyed the expensive service of a de luxe Body Guard and Guidance Director.

Instead of acquiring a sense of his relative unimportance, he has been made to feel that he's Exhibit A.

So forth he steps and waits . . . AND WAITS . . . AND WAITS . . . for the One Right Job for which he is perfectly fitted! But which somehow never appears! Small wonder he becomes embittered, bewildered . . . convinced that he has been Done Dirt by Society-at-Large! AND WHO'S TO BLAME?

GERMAN GASOLINE is almost as disconcerting to American tourists as the current Nazi troop movements and war rumors, judging by some of the amusing experiences Mrs. George E. Brown of Cambridge, and her debutante daughter, Mildred had on their recent motor trip through Germany and Holland.

They were travelling in a new American automobile and, according to Mrs. Brown, the carburetor had difficulty in digesting the mixture of alcohol in the Aryan gas . . . with the result that the car stalled in several high mountain roads and they sometimes had to coast ten miles back to the nearest village for repairs . . .

The present headlines concerning the German-Czech situation are of great interest to the Browns, for while in Germany they saw great troop movements with thousands of German soldiers being moved westward to the Rhine border . . . Having returned last week to spend the rest of the summer at Cohasset, Mrs. Brown and Mildred were warmly welcomed home yesterday at the tea and fashion show in Mrs. Hugh Bancroft's lovely garden . . .

Wars, and rumors of wars seemed very far removed from the beautiful setting of the afternoon's affair which benefited the Cohasset Social Service League . . . The mannequins paraded around the swimming pool in an enchanting variety of costumes and fascinating fabrics, their fragrance . . . The gentle warmth of the peach tinted sun-shades added striking colors to the gowns as the models walked down the garden path to the rows of spectators who watched closely and made mental notes of the newest fashions . . .

Mrs. George Marr, in wearing a becoming navy blue print, attended with her sister, Mrs. Clifford Miller, and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Raymond Hayes . . . Barbara Bremer, whose sports and bathing costumes make fashion editors sit up and take notice, watched the parade of gowns with her sister, Mrs. Perry Knowles . . . Mrs. Sam Barlow was in a party of friends that also included Mrs. John Bacon, Harriet Bacon, Mrs. Horace Drinkwater, Mrs. Malcolm B. Frost and Mrs. Ernest Howes . . .

There were a number of men in the audience as Mr. Harry Long, himself one of the few men who watched the proceedings with his daughter, Mrs. William B. Long, and granddaughter, Judy . . . Also among those noting the fashions and tea were Mrs. Joseph Hayes, Mrs. William H. Brown, Mrs. Prescott Cummer and Mrs. George W. Wood, Jr. . . .

Entertainments Mark Sports Week

CHILDREN'S FESTIVAL WEEK at Buzzards Bay, in which many Cohasset children will compete in various sports for the benefit of the hospital, promises to be quite a bit of entertaining in surrounding towns . . . Jeanne Backemann and her parents have "Sister" (Peggy) Sullivan as house guest at Cataumet, while Sister's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Rice, put the finishing touches on the Rice home-to-be on Chestnut Hill . . . Sister will be a debutante next year . . .

Everyone is looking forward to watching 13-year-old Bill Harding sail his skiff, the Loafer, in the boat races Friday . . . If he turns out to be as good a skipper as his brother, Austin, the Harvard hockey star, and his sisters, Dorothy Harding Callaway and Louise, all of whom learned the rudiments of sailing on this venerable old craft, he should turn in a perfect record . . . The Loafer belongs to Bill's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Francis A. Harding of Chestnut Hill and Cataumet, who have had it for years as a sort of nautical training school for their youngsters . . .

Models New Styles At Cohasset

THE BLONDE HAIR and vivacious smile of Mrs. Louis Munro of Cohasset made her an attractive model in the fashion show at Deer Hill, Mrs. Hugh Bancroft's Cohasset estate, yesterday. She was photographed right after the show when she and several other models lent a helping hand in serving tea to the many guests. The affair was for the benefit of the Cohasset Social Service League.

CHAPTER 13

A reporter's lot on the post-war Paris Tribune was a happy one for a gregarious youngster like myself who liked variety and laughter. Paris in the spring has inspired genius to spout verse and trill roundelays. That spring, life effervesced for me like the champagne I occasionally sipped at Armenonville with a visiting fireman.

There was tennis at the Sainte Cloud courts of Stade Francais when the Americans Miss Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, Bill Tilden, Edith Sigourney played the French for the world's hard courts championships. Pound Dip May Imply New Pact

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

Financial Editor

This week's decline in sterling below the old gold parity may be implying a new realignment of the dollar, pound and franc.

The reasons offered for the break include flight of capital on war fears and a burdensome unfavorable British trade balance.

The reasons may be correct. But underneath all the excitement there is room to believe there is a deeper and more far reaching explanation.

Authoritative Washington letters have indicated right along that the tripartite currency stabilization pact of September 1936 has work ed in its own curious way. And consequently the way was paved for a new deal.

Now there is no reason offered for believing that the tripartite pact is operating any longer.

And as the ultimate fortunes of the exchanges are based the pact on a new relation of the British pound is not so far distant.

LIMPING RALLY

The constructive crowd will have to display a better brand of leadership than they had on show Tuesday if they are going to prevent an extension of the recession. They may claim that the trading fraternity is still jittery but that is not an argument for the very simple reason that it is out of such a condition that downturns usually develop. Nor can they say the market can't go down with business turning up. For then they forget the market did just that.

• • •

As we see it after so much jerking back and forth, the trading range the market is not going to get anywhere until one side is severely tested. Current position alone is enough to make one think the test will be of the lower edge of the plane. As to whether or not it will hold up we decline to guess. But we do intend waiting to find out. And that policy has cost nothing for the past two months.

STATE STREET NOTEBOOK

The magnitude of the next war can be gauged by estimates that this year world powers will spend over 15 billions for armaments... More than seven times the sum spent in 1913, a pre-war year... In this country we are informed 12 per cent of the budget goes for national defense... Despite record deliveries the influx of new orders has been so huge that aircraft makers find their unfilled order backlog up 15 per cent since January.

Boston Wool Business Dull

Business was very quiet in the Boston wool market today, but quotations on greasy, shorn domestic wools were fairly firm.

Good French combing lengths fine territory wools in original bags were steady to firm at 62 to 65 cents, scoured basis, with only limited quantities becoming available occasionally at prices on the low side of the range.

A little interest was being shown in country packed mixed lots of ⅜ and ½ blood bright fleeces and even though requirements were comparatively limited it was found necessary to pay up to 30 cents in the grease, delivered east, to fill the orders.

Only an occasional lot was available at 28 to 29 cents in the grease.

Sterling Sinks To New Low

LONDON, Aug. 31 (AP)—The British pound weakened further and the American dollar climbed higher in the foreign exchange market today as the demand for dollars by worried Europeans continued unabated.

Heavy dollar buying brought the pound down to $4.85¾ compared with yesterday's $4.85⅞. (Yesterday the pound slid down below its historic parity with the dollar, $4.8665, for the first time in three years.)

In the New York foreign exchange market today the pound fluctuated widely in exciting trading. The pound, after a $4.86 close, yesterday, opened in New York at $4.85⅞, dipped to $4.85¾, shot up to $4.85⅞ in hectic bidding, and eased off again.)

Exchange control authorities, in London, at first apparently doing little to check the pound's downward slide, later intervened and caused partial recovery. The pound closed only one cent lower than yesterday at $4.85⅞.

A major factor was the continued movement of foreign balances to New York.

Monopoly Probe an Aid--Haney

By LEWIS HANEY

Professor of Economics, New York University

EAST JAFFREY, N. H., Aug. 31—On its face the anti-trust inquiry now under way is a good thing. Competition is one of the conditions which is usually supposed to monopoly, and competition is a condition which is usually to be desired.

Fair competition may be the life of business. Certainly it is the main-spring of individualism and the capitalist system.

What we really want, when we propose to attack monopoly is to encourage fair competition. Such competition means free and wide choice in buying and selling, according to individual desires and capabilities.

But in considering any anti-monopoly move it is most important to allow for the various "buts and ifs" implied in the foregoing statements. It is also necessary to note the spirit and underlying purpose of the investigators.

Too many times in the past we have had "anti-trust" movements which got nowhere, either because they made no distinctions, or were dominated by merely political motives.

• • •

The following distinctions are most important:

(1) Monopoly is only one of several ways in which fair competition may be restrained. Government interference may be as bad as any private monopoly. Ignorance and the force of old customs and habits may also keep business men from competing effectively.

(2) Some monopoly is necessary and is called "natural" by economists. This is true in public utilities such as electric light and gas.

(3) Some monopoly though not necessary is expedient such as so-called "legal monopolies" patents and copyrights.

(4) Not all competition is good, thus unfair methods or ignorant practices may lead to bad competition. Competition may become so excessive as to be called "cut-throat", and in the end may lead to monopoly.

(5) Monopoly is not limited to business men. There are also monopolies among laborers and among farmers.

(6) Finally, bigness and monopoly are different. There may be small monopolies, and big business may compete keenly.

Any investigation which does not allow for these facts is going to be confused, and be a waste of our money.

• • •

"Politics" has often been a main feature, thus suits may be brought for the purpose of pleasing some class or group which feels that its special interests are hurt by some business.

NEW YORK, Aug. 31 (INS)—Stone & Webster and Blodget, Inc. head an underwriting syndicate offering publicly today $1,000,000 Gulf States Utilities Co. first and refunding 4 per cent. bonds, Series C, due 1966. The bonds are priced at 106.

10-11 It was a mixed session with most price changes minor. There was some trading where news broke, and rather wide swings of a point where there was no news but most part quiet and featureless. The gains in steels were generally small ones. Trade reports were conflicting and was confusing to traders. But he continued expected demand for autos and parts would materialize with the end of the idea. Business news was also confined to the usual progress of individual companies. Wall Street in general was mostly marking time for the next week's developments. Sales were around 1,000,000 shares.

11-12 It was mixed again and some of the time stocks showed gains and a point or two more. Most of the interest was in issues of the steel group. But the tape had no news to go by but a slow week. Some of the steel stocks moved pretty good but there were mixed more than modest elsewhere. But they were not on hard to say volume. The price issues acted well. An extensive large number of stocks had failed to put in appearance. And these were not confined to high priced, thin market issues, as is usually the case. Interest was going on in the foregoing statements. It is also necessary to note the spirit and underlying purpose of the investigators.

Too many times in the past we have had "anti-trust" movements which got nowhere, either because they made no distinctions, or were dominated by merely political motives.

Steve and Danno Do It For the Irish Homefolks

HAVING DONE IT ONCE IN DUBLIN, Steve Casey and Dan O'Mahony are fixing to do it again in Killarney next week. Which is to say that the two prize products of Boston's wrestling culture, now vacationing in the homeland, snatched hunks of each other and fumbled in the deep marshy growth of each other's chest-fuzz to a draw in Eire's capital city the other night.

AUSTEN LAKE

This, of course, is in strict accordance with the best American mat tradition which requires that a popular and profitable attraction be repeated to the limit of public patience. So the stellar contest between the two massive exponents of muscularity will be moved to Kerry next week as a feature of the Killarney Fair.

The Dublin people, being more sophisticated than the rural Kerry folk and hence more tolerant toward shennanigans, received the Casey-O'Mahony match with appreciation. The Dublin press, like the Irish Times, treated it with cautious dignity, printing faithful reports of the ferocity with which Danno applied his Irish Whip while Casey responded with his Flip. And the paper noted gravely that the action was for the world's highest titular gewgaw between two native sons, who in their respective times have worn the terrestial toga.

Danno Learned a Lesson

THE IRISH TIMES FAILS TO MENTION any heavings over the ropes or manifestations of mayhem, or a concerted finale rush by the guarda to quell the contestants and the bucket crews, or whether the spectators were enticed to take part in the evening's merriment. In short it was a routine night.

You may be sure that the Killarney repetition will be a routine evening too. Because Danno and Co. learned a lesson there a few years ago which they are not likely to forget. Now, Killarney as I knew it last year, is a rural tourist center in one of the loveliest scenic spots on earth—a village of several thousand inhabitants who lead pious workaday lives. The men curry their acres and carry their produce by donkey cart to the village Arms, and the women [illegible] and offer pretty fingerwork to lady visitors.

The back end of town [illegible] with irregular lines and low roofed houses where potted geraniums stand in the windows. There is a red brick [illegible] where bonded sisters teach blacksmocked heavy browed youngsters the rudiments of trade and citizenship. Corner stores sell local versions of tobacco, sugar sticks, the simple needs of the community or tourist transit.

And beyond the [illegible] with their moss covered walls and hawthorne hedges, there is a race track and long build ings where the stars [illegible] and local displays and folk come to barter, sell or swap [illegible] the [illegible] accents of the region. There are summer odors of [illegible] briar rosemary and rich brown earth.

SO THIS IS WHY DANNO AND STEVE, whose respective natal [illegible] a few [illegible] and heather, will not [illegible] ate of [illegible] Blue [illegible] will [illegible] meet in Killarney. 250,000 at School Football Games | Sport Attracts Great Crowds

By JACK CONWAY

THE HUGE crowds that attend heavyweight boxing championship bouts and world series baseball games do not begin to compare with the total turnout any Saturday afternoon at the peak of the football season to see schoolboy elevens in action.

Mr. Boston

Last fall I made a special survey of the attendance figures of schoolboy games played within 30 miles of Boston on one of the big days of the season, and I found that the youthful gridiron heroes had been watched by 250,000 persons.

It isn't uncommon for schoolboy teams like Malden, Medford, Everett, Lawrence, Haverhill, Salem, Newton and Waltham to draw 10,000 to 12,000 persons at a single game.

During the early part of the season the schoolboy games frequently attract more people than the college clashes.

In cities like Malden, Lawrence and Newton the high school football team occupies a very important spot in the community. The elevens have large local followings.

The Boston schools do not attract such large crowds at their games as do their out-of-town rivals as a result of their policy of playing their contests other than on Saturdays. Of course, when it gets down to the Thanksgiving Day morning games the Boston schools step into their own.

The doubleheader featuring English high against Boston Latin and the High School of Commerce against Dorchester high usually attracts a gathering of 25,000.

I have been greatly impressed by the rapid strides in modern football made by our schoolboy elevens. The youngsters toss forward passes as skilfully as they throw a baseball. The boys playing on high school and prep school teams have been brought up in an atmosphere of modern football and take easily to the game.

When the top players among the schoolboys reach college they are prepared to continue their advancement in the gridiron pastime.

The football season is short and intense. There is not any sport that furnishes any more thrills than modern football. With the game opened up by the forward pass most anything can happen. No contest is won until the final whistle blows.

Coaching Methods Have Changed

THE METHODS of the high school coaches have changed. There is not any place in our modern school systems for the coaches who browbeat boys and who insist upon victory regardless of the cost.

The successful schoolboy coach is the same high type as Dick Harlow of Harvard, Pat Hanley of Boston University, Gil Dobie of Boston College and Dr. Eddie Anderson of Holy Cross.

Harlow, Hanley, Dobie and Anderson know that the first essential for a coach is to have the confidence and respect of his players.

I have watched Dick Harlow drill his Harvard squad. Harlow is on top of every play, calls a player for his mistake, corrects the faults of the players and then gives them credit for their winning plays.

A dozen to 15 years ago many coaches had the erroneous idea that profanity, cheap vulgarity and a merciless attitude towards the health of the boys was a part of the makeup of a successful coach.

The late Knute Rockne routed the last of this type of coach from the college ranks. High schools and prep schools have followed the fine example set by Rockne, who argued that without the respect of the players a coach cannot hope to succeed.

I suggest that you take in some of the schoolboy games during the coming fall. I know you will be amazed at the fine grade of football that is being offered by the youngsters.

Random Shots at Target

NOW THAT Doc Cramer has stepped from center field to do a little pitching for the Red Sox, one may expect Joe Cronin to call upon Eddie Collins, Hy Mason and Phil Troy for occasional relief work when the regular flingers falter . . . It is seldom that a first class club has been obliged to stagger along with such a shaky pitching staff as does the Sox.

The Callahan-Martin bout and the other stirring battles on the recent Goodwin A. C. card at the Garden have stimulated interest in local boxing . . . Matchmaker "Rip" Valenti was pleased at the success of his opening show of the fall season . . . I believe the public is as flight-minded as ever, and with more frequent shows of the high type of the recent Garden offering there should be a decided pickup in attendance figures.

The football game between Pat Hanley's All-Stars and the Chicago Bears at the Brown Stadium in Providence tomorrow night will give the fans a line on what they may expect during the coming gridiron season . . . Hanley has a squad of 41 college stars whom he believes will make things very interesting for the Bears.

Dilboy Show Tonight

Trials for Diamond Ring Finals On

Pat Devine, Cambridge; Chuck Prendible, Charlestown and Bill Weinberg, Chelsea, are expected to provide the heavy punching as the Dilboy Post, V. F. W., launches its Diamond Ring amateur boxing tournament tonight at Dilboy Field, Somerville.

Devine, Prendible and Weinburg, all well-known amateur stars, are entered in the heavyweight division. Boxing will be in the 118, 126, 135, 147, 160 and heavyweight classes.

A week from tonight the second elimination tournament will be held at Dilboy Field with the finals there on Sept. 14. Diamond rings will be awarded the eventual winners.

Close to 100 pure punchers have been lined up for the Diamond Ring series. Half of them are expected to go to the post tonight when more than 20 bouts are in sight.

PAT DEVINE

Standouts in the other classes are Guy Vitagliano, Medford, and Edward Spiridione, Lawrence, 118; Nick Sullo, East Boston, and Leo Thibodeau, Fitchburg, 126; Leo Liotta, Somerville, Joe Halligan, Fitchburg, and Arthur Morris, Boston, 135; John Rynne, Boston, and Joe Mazzarino East Boston, 147; Lou Vivolo, Boston, and Joe Lupo, Boston, 160.

Park Fight Finals Tonight

A thunder storm with plenty of rain that suddenly popped out of what had been practically clear skies, washed out the novice amateur boxing tourney of the Boston park department which was to have been staged last evening at Columbus Stadium, South Boston.

The turn in the weather, coming shortly before 8 o'clock, sent several thousand spectators—early arrivals—scampering for shelter. Many of these in negotiating the Strandway had narrow escapes from being run down by the four-way whizzing automobiles at that point.

Firpo Battles Adams Tonight

Jose Firpo of the Argentine and Sailor Adams of the U. S. S. Maryland will clash in the feature wrestling bout, best two falls out of three, at the Arena tonight.

In the semifinal, Art O'Mahoney of Ireland will take on the "Masked Marvel."

PRELIMINARIES

Ed McNeil, Chicago, vs. Pat Schaffer, California.

Al Cadell, England, vs. Carmon Carone, Italy.

Walter Lipson, Columbia, vs. Gil Sparrow, New York.

Dick Turner, intercollegian, vs. Mickie Travers, Columbia University.

SEMIFINAL BOUT

Masked Marvel vs. Art O'Mahoney, Ireland.

MAIN BOUT

Sailor Adams, U. S. S. Maryland, vs. Jose Firpo, Argentine.

BEES N. L. SENSATION

Do you realize that the Bees are but five and a half games out of second place. They are the talk of the baseball public, which is now bemoaning the fact that Casey Stengel didn't have his full squad available for the previous Western trip. There's little doubt that the Bees would be well established in the first division but for the accident that cost them the services of Al Lopez for two months. Whether they win both, split or even blow both of the remaining games in the Windy City, the Stengeleers, and particularly "Old Case" himself, will receive a wild welcome home when they get back to National League Field next Saturday . . . Apparently, the Red Sox wore themselves out scoring runs against the Chicago White Sox, for since the Dykesmen left town they've lost three in a row. Although they are in second place, the Red Sox are three games farther away from the top rung than the fifth place Bees . . . It will be well for the betting fraternity to watch Wilfred Wehrle, the Chicago amateur during the Nationals at Oakmont. He was a quarter finalists in the U. S. amateur championship at Brookline but failed to qualify a year ago at Portland, Oregon. He finished fourth in the Chicago open, tied with Johnny Fischer as the low amateur at Cleveland. And, his game is so sound that many of the top notch pros favor him over Johnny Goodman . . . Bill Terry's statement "The way we're going we're lucky to make the train" has put the Giant manager on the griddle. In all probability, Terry was simply trying to take the pressure off his charges, who without Carl Hubbell are staggering. However, the truth of the matter is that Terry hasn't had a pennant contending club all season . . . Without a double play combination, no team can hope to win a major league flag and Terry hasn't had a second baseman capable of making a pivot throw this season. And, that was the reason he offered $100,000 for Tony Cuccinello, who would have double played and hit the Giants into the pennant had Terry been able to wean him away from Bob Quinn . . . Little Joe Monahan, Sandy Barr, covered himself with glory yesterday during the qualifying rounds for the Nationals at Wannamoisett by posting a 76-73—149. He's just about the best prospect in the state, for he's only 17 years old, a fine golfer as well as a great competitor . . . Jim Hollis, the New England senior champion, who has been playing golf for something like 40 years, changed his grip after watching the Spalding foursome at Belmont in the Boston Evening American-Sunday Advertiser Christmas Basket Fund exhibition match and is hitting the ball better and longer than he has in years . . . John Keenan, the old Myopia and Charles River professional, is now located at Newport, R. I.

Ross Go Proves Soft

Armstrong Coasts to Win

This is the eleventh in a series of thirteen articles by Henry Armstrong, called by experts "the greatest fighter for his weight" in the ring today.

By HENRY ARMSTRONG

(World Featherweight, Welterweight and Lightweight Champion)

Copyright, 1938, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Here is my own account of how I beat Barney Ross and added the welterweight championship to the featherweight title I previously had won from Petey Sarron.

Mr. Mead, my brother Harry, who trains me, and Eddie Walker, who works with them in my corner, all had expected Ross to give me the hardest fight I ever had, because of his physical advantages and because of the fact that he always was a good money fighter and dead game.

I'll confess that I was keyed up for this one as I never was before. It might have been the roar of that great crowd in the Long Island Bowl while the preliminaries were being run off, or perhaps it was the significance of the occasion, providing me with an opportunity to win my second championship, that did it.

While I was getting ready in the dressing room, Mr. Mead said to me:

"Henry, I've got a hunch Ross is going to come out punching and try to take the play away from you. If he does, wade in there and punch with him. Don't back up. Don't grab—keep punching."

BLOWS HURT ROSS

Ross did exactly what Mr. Mead thought he would do, and I did, to the best of my ability, what Mr. Mead had told me to do. We both rushed out at the gong and began banging away. But I finally made him break ground. The second was much the same, with both of us trying to get in some good shots.

Then in the third, I actually won the fight, although it went the full 15 rounds. Just before the end of the third I jarred Barney with a left hook to the chin and ripped my right to his heart. I knew I had him then.

When I came back to my corner, Mr. Mead said:

"Does he feel like he is weakening, or is he still going good?"

"I've got him hurt," I told Mr. Mead. "He fell into me at the end of the round, and he seems to be on the run."

"Keep punching," Mr. Mead said.

Barney never had much of a chance after that, not that he didn't try, but I kept piling in, never letting up.

Twice in the late rounds, Referee Arthur Donovan wanted to stop the fight, but Barney wouldn't let him.

Finally back in the corner between the eleventh and twelfth rounds, Mr. Mead said:

"You've got him all busted up and he is determined to stay the limit, so lay off his head and punch him around the arms and body, unless you see a chance for one clean shot that will end it. I don't want you to bust him up any more."

That's the story of the biggest fight—told by me for the first time.

Henry Armstrong will continue the unusual story of his ring career in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.

Shadows, Passes Hurt

Hank's Record Chances Fade

NEW YORK, Aug. 31 (AP)—Hank Greenberg, the slugging Detroit first baseman, says his chances of beating Babe Ruth's old record of 60 home runs in a season are slim.

Unlike a lot of players, though, he's frank to admit he's in there trying.

The old Bronx boy was found snapping at a bowl of breakfast prunes in the restaurant of the New Yorker.

Hank Greenberg

Hank's parents still dwell in the Bronx, incidentally and it is a matter of record that he would have been playing for the Yankees today if the Yanks hadn't been pretty well fixed for first basemen.

"I'd say I'm about a 10-to-1 shot to break the Babe's mark," he said, tentatively. "It's been a strain ever since they started touting me to knock 61 homers.

"Every time I come to bat I'm trying for one. The fans want them. The result is my batting average has slipped to about .299.

"Another factor which hurts my chances is that they're giving me more intentional passes than ever, just like they did to Ruth. And I guess they're dusting me off a bit, too. I've been hit by pitched balls twice in the last couple of games."

Hank, at the moment of fininshing his prunes, had clouted 45 into the cheap seats. That placed him exactly nine games and three homeruns ahead of the Babes' lavish mark. He got to doing some thinking.

"There are three tough parks for a right-handed hitter like me to ge. homers," he considered. "Here in Yankee Stadium and in Cleveland and Washington. Detroit, Boston, St. Louis, Chicago and Philadelphia are all right. I'll hit them in those five.

"Now, let's see. I've got 36 games left to knock 16 homers. That would give me one more than Ruth's mark. We've got three games left in New York, five in Cleveland, which gives me 28 games in parks where I know I can drive them for four bases.

Babe Ruth

"My best bet, of course, is out in Detroit, where we've got 24 games left. Two apiece are left in Chicago and St. Louis. There's a possibility that we'll have to play off a tie with St. Louis, which would give me an extra game.

"But here's where I'm handicapped. We're going into September, and that's usually bad weather for homers.

"There's the wind, and there's the cold weather, which dulls the hitting. And, finally, the pitchers gain an advantage because shadows fall over the playing field earlier, making it tougher on the batters."

It was remarked that the hazards of September hadn't bothered the Bambino much back in 1927, the year he set his record. He knocked 17 that month, a record which stood until Rudy York, Greenberg's teammate, smacked 18 during last August.

"Yeah," said Hank, "the Babe was a wonder slugger. My hat's still off to him. But I'm going to keep knocking baseballs on wood until my 36 games are up—and maybe Ruth's number."

Yanks Best of All Time---Street

Gabby Can't See Red Sox

By WALTER KILEY

Gabby Street, manager of the St. Louis Browns, speaks from the rich experience of 39 years in baseball, when he ranks the New York Yankees of today the greatest team in all-time baseball.

Dizzy Dean

"Up to now I rated my world championship St. Louis Cardinals of 1931 the best of them all.

"We had a real outfit both defensively and offensively. What a team that was with Dizzy and Paul Dean as just two of our pitchers, with Pepper Martin, Frankie Frisch, Leo Durocher, Ducky Medwick and the other boys all in their prime.

"But there never was anything to touch these Yankees. They're dynamite from one end of the lineup to the other and they're getting fine pitching.

"Just to show how good they are, they have a fellow like this Joe Gordon, a perfect second baseman, who has batted in something like 90 runs, and with 17 homers to his credit, hitting in eighth position."

Street isn't so much impressed with our Red Sox.

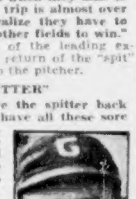
"In the first place," he says, "they can't get anywhere with their pitching. And secondly, they aren't a winning road club.

"They get so accustomed to shooting at your short left field fence here that when they take to the road, their trip is almost over before they realize they have to be able to hit other fields to win."

Street is one of the leading exponents for the return of the "spit" ball as an aid to the pitcher.

RETURN "SPITTER"

"Let us have the spitter back and we won't have all these sore arms," he insists. "The pitcher would get a chance to ease up now and then. Even when they didn't throw a spitter, there would be a deception to the pitch now lacking. All the advantage is now with the batter. Mound success today is dependable on luck and bravery.



Gabby Street

"In the old days a batter had to look out for all sorts of trick deliveries, including the knuckle ball, the shiner, emory ball and spitter.

"On top of that we now have the lively ball and and shorter playing fields. Why I can mention some 40 or 50 oldtimers who could knock out 100 or more home runs a season under present conditions.

"I believe the return of the spitter alone would knock down batting averages for a fare-the-well. I figure that a fellow who is hitting .330 now should be lucky to bat .300.

"Another thing which is hurting is the habit of tossing new balls into the game right and left. The minute a speck of dirt gets on a ball the batter asks for examination by the umpire and a new one.

"We used to start a game with four new balls. Now we always bring out four dozen."

Terry Victim Of Tough Luck

By Associated Press

Del Baker has the Tigers hustling and most of them hope he'll be elected for another term . . . One and all deny Hank Greenberg and Mickey Cochrane had a fist fight in the clubhouse a short time before Owner Walter Briggs gave Mickey the air.

For a guy who never has won a fight in this country, Tommy Farr's demands for a bout with Gunnar Barlund (35 per cent and a cut of the radio rights) would seem a bit exorbitant . . . Pedro Montanez, his bad teeth out and that Harlem bar off his hands, seems all set for a nice ring comeback.

* * *

The New York sports editor who blasted the boxing commission, its referees and its judges had been ordered to make a personal appearance next Tuesday.

Jack Dempsey

A changed batting stance is largely responsible for Tommy Henrich's batting streak . . . A football coach you are going to hear more and more about is Ray Wolf of North Carolina. Jack Dempsey's Broadway bar isn't doing the business of the mother joint on eighth avenue, but Jack has no complaints.

No club has been more beset by injuries and hard luck this year than the Giants so give Bill Terry credit for keeping them up there, whether you like him or not.

* * *

The tennis moguls still are furious over Lu Moody's withdrawal . . . Greasy Neale, the smart Yale backfield coach, says Brown may prove a tough 'un this fall . . . Pity Frankie Frisch couldn't get his Cards organized sooner. Right now they're doing just about the best job in the National League.

Buck Newsome of the Browns didn't use the thumb of his pitching hand in hurling that four-hitter last Sunday—it was too swollen.

Which reminds you that while they are a total loss, the Browns keep hustling away for old Gabby Street which is something the St. Louis office should keep in mind when they start planning for next year.

* * *

With Vander Meer and Grissom in there the Reds might have copped that National League gonfalon . . . Eddie Brannick, Giant secretary and the most loyal rooter the team has, sits in the bleachers and changes ties three times a day, but no dice . . . Out in Pittsburgh they think the Pirates are just the best of a bad National League lot.

Mickey Cochrane

Larry MacPhail says that so far as he knows Burleigh Grimes is still the manager of the Dodgers . . . And that goes for 1939. Well, a whole lot of people hope Larry means it . . . A West Coast school is reported making passes at Carl Snavely of Cornell.

Tom Stow, the Oakland tennis pro, who made Don Budge what he is today, has travelled 3000 miles to see how great the greatest amateur player in the world really is.

Personals: Hype Igoe, ace boxing writer of the New York Journal-American, has licked typhoid and will be back on the job soon.

Young Gabe Paul of Cincinnati is giving Eddie Brannick of the Giants a race for the honor of being the best-liked road secretary of a National League ball club . . . Writers all around the circuit think Casey Stengel has done one of the best managerial jobs in the National this year. So do we, Casey . . . Larry McPhail played a round of golf with George Weiss of Newark and came out with a pair of stiff legs . . . Mickey Cochrane, wearing a broad-brimmed sombrero, gallops into town each morning from the Wyoming ranch to get the morning papers and read the box scores.

South Boston Crew Second

SOUTHPORT, Conn., Aug. 31 (AP)—The South Shore Yacht Club's gallant crew from Milwaukee, Wis., who traveled the longest distance to compete here for the Sears Cup and national junior championship, fought today to hold their slim lead.

Skippered by William A. Dreher, the Milwaukee entry captured a first and third in yesterday's two races that brought the eight-crew fleet to the halfway point of the series and went in front with a total of 24¼ points for the four events held so far.

Two more tests are on today's program, with the final two races scheduled for Thursday.

Trailing the Wisconsin club, accustomed to sailing much smaller boats, was the South Boston Yacht Club, which won yesterday morning's race, but finished fifth in the afternoon brush to chalk up 22½ points.

Watch Hill, R. I., was third, with 21, and Pequot, the defending champion, and Annisquam, Mass., the opening day leader, were deadlocked in fourth with 19 each.

Garcia Likely To Halt March Of Armstrong

NEW YORK, Aug. 31 (AP)—Ceferino Garcia, stalwart Filipino welterweight, gets his second crack at the championship November 2, when he meets Henry Armstrong, Negro triple champion, in a 15-round title match in Madison Square Garden.

Mick Jacobs announced the fight yesterday after transcontinental parleys with Eddie Mead, Armstrong's manager, in Los Angeles.

Henry's lower lip, cut in training and ripped wide open when he won his third title, the lightweight crown, from Lou Ambers, August 17, is not yet fully healed, and according to Mead, Henry can't think of ring work for another month or so.

It will be the St. Louis Negro's first defense of one of his three crowns, lightweight, featherweight and welter.

Garcia is the man most people pick to beat Armstrong. He is a big, strong fellow who will come close to the welterweight limit of 147 pounds and he can hit like a mule. Ross beat him in the Carnival of Champions, but didn't escape unscathed.

Burke's 141 Leads Qualifiers

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 31 (INS)—Johnny Burke of Newport, national intercollegiate, Rhode Island open and amateur champion, held medal honors today in the New England qualifying rounds for the national amateur championship by shooting a 71-70—141.

Two strokes behind came John O. Levinson, Kennebunkport, Me., former New England amateur champion, and Wilfred Crossley, Norfolk, current title holder, with 143 each.

Councillor P. A. Murray Succumbs

Peter A. Murray, 56, serving his 13th year as a member of the City Council from Ward 19, died at City Hospital early today as result of a cerebral hemorrhage.

His collapse occurred as he had completed the steep climb of the Faneuil Hall stairs to attend a meeting of the Council. While waiting for an ambulance, he said:

"I knew those stairs would be the death of me."

One of the most popular Council members, he was serving his seventh term from Ward 19, which comprises most of Jamaica Plain and part of Roslindale.

He was elected in 1925 and took his seat in January, 1926. He was a native of Boston.

Funeral services will be at 10 a. m., Saturday, at Our Lady of Lourdes Church, Jamaica Plain. Burial will be at Mt. Benedict cemetery, West Roxbury.

Left a widower, 12 years ago, Councillor Murray devoted himself to the upbringing of his seven children. They and three grandchildren survive him.

Voters Here Rush To Beat Deadline

With the total number of names on Boston's voting list already the highest on record before a primary election, registration places throughout the city reported a last-minute rush today.

Officials in charge estimated that at least 4000 new voters would be registered by tonight's 10 o'clock deadline. Yesterday's registration brought the total of voters to 328,-985. Previous high was 319,470, in 1935.

Set $5 Per Day Quabbin Wage

By JOHN W. ENGLISH

Following a hearing before associate members of the State Board of Labor and Industries, the board upheld Commissioner James T. Moriarty's order that laborers on the Quabbin reservoir project shall be paid $5 a day for eight hours labor.

The order of Commissioner Moriarty was appealed to the full board by the Metropolitan District Water Supply Commission, of which Eugene C. Hultman is chairman.

The water supply commission contended, at the hearing, that under Chapter 461, of the Revised Laws of Massachusetts, laborerers on the project shall be paid not less than the maximum prevailing wages for similar labor in the towns where the work is to be done.

Fifty cents an hour or $4 per day has been paid previously.

'DIXIE' DAVIS SAYS HE PAID HINES $2000

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN

International News Service Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Aug. 31—J. Richard (Dixie) Davis, disbarred lawyer who was the "mouthpiece" for the late Dutch Schultz and the man on whom District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey pins high hopes of convicting James J. Hines of criminal conspiracy, took the witness stand at Hines' trial today and "sang" obligingly for Dewey.

But showman Dewey did not immediately rush his witness into identifying Hines with the Schultz policy mob.

Slowly, carefully, the prosecutor led his witness through a recital of his life history beginning with his birth in a small town, his study of law in a night school and lawyer's office, his first introduction to minor mobsters of the city.

TESTIFIES OF PAYOFF

Davis finally "put the finger" on Hines. He swore that he paid Hines $2000 in October, 1932. He testified:

"I visited Hines' home with Schultz and later went to see Hines with Leo Rosenthal.

"I told Hines I heard he needed money, so I gave him $2000."

"What did he say?"

"Thank you."

Davis then described "social"

Beat Suspect In Girl Attack

Aroused by an attempted attack on an attractive girl, a crowd of about 100 men savagely beat a suspect in Roxbury today.

When a police squad rescued him from his infuriated assailants, the suspect was battered and bruised about face and body, and most of his clothing was ripped off. He was arrested. None of the mob was held.

Victim of the attempted attack was Miss Annette Palmer, 25, of Mansur street, Roxbury, who identified the beaten man as one who trailed her from Egleston square, and attempted to attack her in Schiller street.

Her screams as she fought off her assailant were heard by Felix Scheller, of Prince street, and other members of the German Educational Society. They dashed from the nearby clubrooms to the rescue and after a short chase overhauled and captured the suspect.

A crowd of threatening men quickly gathered, wrested the suspect from his captors and attacked him.
